Reading acquisition occurs in a stage-like progression (Chall, 1983). Chall (1983) credits Piaget's stages of cognitive development and Perry's study of advanced intellectual and ethical development as the foundation of her work in reading development. Students with special needs continue to struggle with reading acquisition.

Instruction/Reading Acquisition | Special Connections

Piaget's theory in a nutshell was that children begin the process of reading and language acquisition by first gathering sensory and motor information. This is information about the way things feel, taste, smell and look. Their motor information is how they move and handle objects in space.
